Under the conditions of digestion with concentrated HNO₃, heating at 270 degrees C and atomic absorption spectrophotometer, the effect of total concentration of HNO₃ and the temperature of digestion on the recovery and precision of Cd in Pangasius hypophthalmus (Sauvage) have been studied. The results indicate that the recovery of Cd is about 80% and the RSD is about 4% when the total concentration of HNO₃ is 17 g/L and the digestion temperature is 270 degrees C. The recovery of Cd is about 75% and the RSD is about 3% when the total concentration of HNO₃ is 17 g/L and the digestion temperature is 260 degrees C. In this way, the samples could be digested by strong acid solution for the atomic absorption spectrophotometer at 270 degrees C or 260 degrees C. The concentration of HNO₃ and digestion temperature have little effect on the recovery and precision of Cd.Q: Create word document using openxml I have a c# application that creates a lot of word documents. I want to try and consolidate the entire process, and so I'm hoping that a library exists that makes creating a word document as easy as a pdf would be. As far as I can tell, it appears that openxml is the only way to do it, but I'm unsure of the steps to follow. I've tried searching the internet, and I've spent quite a bit of time looking through the samples in Visual Studio but I haven't had any luck. Has anyone else tried to do this? I'd like to avoid making calls to the Microsoft word object model, so any help is greatly appreciated. Update: I'm still
