Category: GooglePlaySunday, 4 February 2012 I am currently in Ethiopia on a 10-day tour. I arrived with my camera and a vast aimless audience. No-one can turn up to a concert, presentation or film with any expectation of knowing what is going on with the guests, except that somebody else will certainly want to see the film. I am the latest production of Sergei Bondarchuk's "Ochi" series. I have been commissioned by Channel 4 television, which aired it to great acclaim and made it into the All Africa Channel, and by the film company, which is making a full-length animated version. It was a considerable coup to get it on in the first place, and I now hope to get it on in the second. I have given a further installment of the series but to look for other commissions. I was born in USSR at Novosibirsk in 1934, where my father was a railwayman and an artist. He was a cosmonaut and visited Mir space station in space. He travelled with a dog named Bolotnik, a reference to his favourite football team. I was a small baby, so I was carried in a special high chair made out of metal tubes. In Moscow, the house we lived in was in Gorky Street. It is now in the centre of Yekaterinburg, Russia. I was sent to a Russian school and I learnt to read and write, and listen to radio. The director, Sergei Bondarchuk, was my earliest film hero. I dreamed that I would grow up to be him. The family was displaced when the Germans invaded Russia in 1941. We returned to Novosibirsk. I never wanted to live again in Novosibirsk, which is home to a great many awful people. We moved to the USSR then to Mogile 3ef4e8ef8d
