Invizi Cracked 2022 Latest Version is an open-source, privacy-focused, and modern cryptocurrency manager/tracker app. What makes Invizi special? The main "selling point" of Invizi is the fact that it automatically encrypts and stores all your data locally. Furthermore, the app is open-source, meaning that the app's code can be accessed and audited by everybody. Last but not least, it's also worth noting that Invizi has no ads and no user-tracking devices within it - your data is yours and yours only.

Invizi's GUI explained Learning to use Invizi is pretty straightforward as the app boasts a modern-looking and very user-friendly UI, as well as a typical layout. Just like most crypto managers out there, the left side of the main window is the place where you can access all of the app's features. You can access the Dashboard, manage multiple accounts, check out the profit and loss situation, buy and sell digital assets, check out all the latest information about a coin's prices, view indexes, and menus such as Tools, Settings, and something called Omni Search. How about the features? As you may already have gathered from the UI's description, Invizi does all right in the features department. To be more precise, some of the app's most noteworthy features are as follows: Autosync, Encrypted Journal, Personal Coin Rating, Real-time Tracking, a Smart Calculator, Profit & Loss, Custom Index, and an Ad-free Coin List. To conclude, if you're managing lots of crypto assets daily and you value privacy above all else, then Invizi is not a bad choice. It might not be at the level of some other industry standard-level apps, but it's open-source, it's free, it has enough useful features, and is built entirely with your privacy in mind.]]> Syncs Local Storage Across the World 18 Nov 2018 18:36:40 +0000 wrote an article about Wish
