With support for over 30 file types, you can encode from 60 different languages to thousands of different platforms and operating systems. Keymacro's powerful encoder supports multi-track batch processes. You can encode as many videos as you want at once and process them in different languages for the same price! This software offers several settings for your projects. You can, for example, choose the language in which the software processes the media, and also whether the music should be kept in English, French, German, Spanish or Italian. You can also define the folder path in which the media is to be processed and the output folder. Then you can enter the amount of time you want your project to take, and when you have finished encoding the job, you simply click on the job's done button. The final file size and speed are displayed. During the process, you can monitor the encoding progress and the quality of the final output. The system is very fast. You can start working with it in less than a minute. This software runs in the background on your computer, meaning you don't need to monitor it. Simply use your computer for other tasks and the work will automatically be finished. It supports multi-threading, which means that you can encode up to eight videos simultaneously. You can process them in batches of 1-4 videos and combine them in one file. This software is best for all-round use, as it includes a quality manager which provides a detailed overview of the encoding progress and allows you to monitor the output at any time. A limitation of the software is that the processing results are not saved in an individual folder; instead, they are saved into the master folder. However, the software does not overwrite the original files; it simply copies them, which is a good thing if you want to edit the video again. Keymacro comes in various editions with different levels of license for a different price. For example, Keymacro Standard costs only $24.95 while Keymacro Premium costs $49.95.
