[a] You can also utilize the built-in pencil tool and paper textures to fill in shadows or even use the pen tool to add pixels, or vector. [b] The way it works is that the dots become more transparent when you remove them. [c]

Before you start, figure out the number of effects you want to apply. If you choose a different spot on the photo you want to fix, you will have to click and drag the tool to the spot.

You'll notice how the features in the tool window change on or over the image. For example, the colors will be changed when you place different colored dots on the image, but when you click to pick a color, the gradients will be replaced by colored dots. In the menu bar, click Image >

Adjustments > Levels.

The Levels dialog box will open. Let's first remove the spot before putting up layers. [a] Select the Spot Healing Brush tool (red arrow) and click on a spot on the image where you want to remove the spot. [b] Click in the white area on the right side of the layer. This shows the white box next to the tool that helps you guess where you should click before you click on a spot. [c] Then click on a spot. The spot will be removed. [d] Repeat the same process on the other spots (if there are any). [e] Click OK.

You will have removed the spots. In some cases, an adjustment layer will need to be removed, which will make those adjustments disappear. It may be that you want to use one of the built-in filters to make an effect. For example, you can use the blur or denoise filters to remove a spot of noise or grain. [a] Choose Filter > Blur > Gaussian Blur. [b] Click on the arrow on the right side of the filter selection to open the parameters. [c] Enter a number from 0 to 50 for the radius. This determines the strength of the blur effect that will happen. [d] Click OK. To remove a detail, you can use the Clone Stamp tool. [a] Select the Clone Stamp tool (blue arrow), and click on a spot to remove an area of detail. [b]

Q: AJAX request is working fine but PHP does not receives it I have an AJAX request which is sending data to server through POST request. My HTTP server is Apache2. When i send POST request and checked in my browser debugger, I am getting my success data but my PHP script is not getting the data sent in the request. How can I fix this problem. I have referred the solution in How to send Ajax request from php application to external URL, not in same domain? as I am using HTTP server in my local machine. Data is sent properly as it does not breaks in firebug network monitor. I have made some debugging already in my php script and it does not return any data but it returns output in firebug network monitor.

Here is my javascript function function callAjax(url) { $.ajax({ url: url, type: 'POST', contentType: 'application/x-www-form-urlencoded', data: $("#userForm").seri alize(), success: function (response) { $('#response' ).val(response); }, error:

function (err) { $('#response').val('Error

Mycobacterium tuberculosis specifically down-regulates TNF- α and IL-10 in human monocytes. The interactions between mycobacteria and the immune system are controlled by a finely tuned balance between pro- and anti-inflammatory cytokines. In this study, we show that M. tuberculosis activates human monocytes to produce high levels of TNF-alpha and low levels of IL-10. The absence of IL-10 does not impair the ability of monocytes to produce TNF-alpha but it results in a decreased level of TNF-alpha produced. Furthermore, IL-10 reduces the secretion of TNF-alpha in response to TLR2, TLR4 and TLR3 ligation. We show that these effects are not due to TNF-alpha blocking, but are mediated by the combined activities of IL-10 and IFN-gamma. Therefore, we postulate that by modulating the level of TNF-alpha and IL-10, M. tuberculosis has evolved to selectively affect the immunoregulatory mechanisms of activated macrophages.
