One-touch substitutions stay put, while making subcalls manually or by holding down the “L” or “R” button will move players around the pitch. Players can also be restored to full health by pressing the “X” button. Over 50 all-new passes have been developed by FIFA 22’s new Art Director, Leighton Martin, which provide new passing styles, like those done in the FIFA Icon Series. Ultimate Team Changes Ultimate Team changes are similar to FIFA 17 Ultimate Team, with a few key tweaks, including the new ability to reserve players that you own, as well as the ability to take control of multiple player slots. There is a new tab on the player screen with quick access to an overview of all players you own in the game with easy access to player information such as game-day team and squad numbers, academy/youth team status, price and position as well as purchase rank and player data. Premium Team Offers Premium Team Offers are now available weekly and include new sets of bonuses, customisation items and much more. This is now available in-game in the “Weekly Premium Offers” section of the in-game store. New Monthly Transfers System Players can now choose to let the AI negotiate a deal for them during the transfer window with a new Transfermarket tab. Matchday Offers The new Matchday Offers feature lets you enter your team directly into a new Match Day Challenge where the team you’re manager of will take on another manager’s team in a match of your choice. Make sure you win to earn the most points. You can also enter your team into the new “Premier League Cup” which will see your Premier League team compete with other Premier League clubs in an epic, single-elimination knock out tournament. A new “Out of Position Player” kit will now also be awarded to the best under-performing players in the game. If players are getting too close to the opposition box, they’ll be awarded with a “Deadball” kit.
