I didn't know what I wanted to do with all the data in the database, so I decided to try the Inaport program. It came in and within 10 minutes got all of my data with very little effort on my part. I did not know how to do anything with all of the data, but the program made it easy for me to use. After working with it for a month, I decided to do a full audit of all of the data that was in the database, and found that there were over 500 databases that needed to be updated. I found the process very simple and easy to use. If you are having the same problems that I was, I highly recommend this program. " "I was using Inaport for my business to take information from SAP's mid-range accounting system and import into our main GoldMine database. I had to do a lot of searching and hunting around to try to work out which fields needed to be set up in our new system for each of the information I was taking from SAP. It was a nightmare to get all the information out. It would have been better if this could be done automatically and I didn't have to spend all that time trying to write programs to extract the information from the software. The Inaport software does this automatically and it's very fast. I've only had a short amount of time to use it, but it seems like it will perform well. I'll be sure to update if I notice any problems. " "I wish that the software worked with Sage Line 50 and possibly with ACT!, as I have had my hands full with trying to get Inaport to work with another database. Inaport is a tool that is very easy to use. It comes in a very user friendly application that will look like a regular database. The best part is that all you have to do is drag and drop the connections you want to make and you are done. I have only been working with Inaport for a short period of time, but I can see that it will be a very important piece in my accounting software system." "I have been using Inaport for a little over a year now and I must

JQuery UI: How to make navigation inside the modal dialog? - stickeyv ===== minimaxir If you need to display things over an existing screen, the _idea_ of modal/modeless dialogs is a good one to use. However, there are usability problems with what's being suggested here. Specifically, I dislike the perma-navigation on the modal dialog because it's _not_ what the modal dialog is for. It's to force the user to select options from _inside_ a dialog. Having the navigation outside a dialog feels out of place to the user, and furthermore is a convoluted way to do things which the author should have done it the simpler way. ~~~ zeeg Agreed. This isn't a good use for modal/modeless dialogs. ~~~ minimaxir I think it is a good use for modal/modeless dialogs. The modal dialog is most commonly used to explain a process or action, and as such, it _SHOULD_ be just as confusing as the data has no context that would help the user find the way out. This is especially true since the purpose of a modal dialog is to have a conversation with the user while they're in the process of typing something b7e8fdf5c8

IndySoft Zoho Books is a Zoho CRM for professional (industries) accounting in particular. It is flexible, user friendly and full of features. You will find here all your data, contacts and tasks. You have to learn Zoho Books for a better management of all your bookings and payments (up to $1.000.000). Now it is your time to relax and enjoy the best and free Zoho Bookings. With this free version, you can: Get a free trial In the typical Zoho Books environment, a customer wants to buy a car. The sales agent checks this with the customer, prior to the transaction. The customer sends an instruction to the agent via mail. In the same way, the agent sends the e-mail instructing the mechanic to prepare and deliver the new car. This is a typical approach in Zoho Bookings. A sale has a pre-payment (due date) - every sale is owed to a specific date. Any failure or delay of a sales agent, leads to a notification to the corresponding customer via e-mail. When a mechanic is hired for a particular car, he or she is paid as soon as possible. Now a payment is made for a new car - take a look at an invoice with a pdf file, as a proof of payment for the new car. You can print a statement and save the invoice and money. The mechanic agrees to deliver the car next week. He writes a note to the customer and send the car, as a proof of delivery. The car will be delivered at 9 am on a Saturday, so his boss agrees. A few days later, the customer is pleased and sends a thank you mail to the agent. Finally, the sales agent says thanks to the mechanic for the job.
